New device to detect cardiac murmur: A device that can detect cardiac murmurs using audio-visual digital heart sound analysis technology was launched on Tuesday by health secretary V K Subburaj. The device, its inventor Arvind Thiagarajan said, was like a digital stethoscope with an inbuilt murmur detector. "It's been programmed so that it detects only murmurs that can cause problems. We have had 95% sensitivity," he said. Cheaper than the special stethoscope used by cardiologists, the device will be bought by government hospitals. TNV
